MANSFIELD HIGH SCHOOL
MANSFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS

A year comes and a year goes

It brings with it many moods . . .

Chances for us to work together and to feel a sense of community

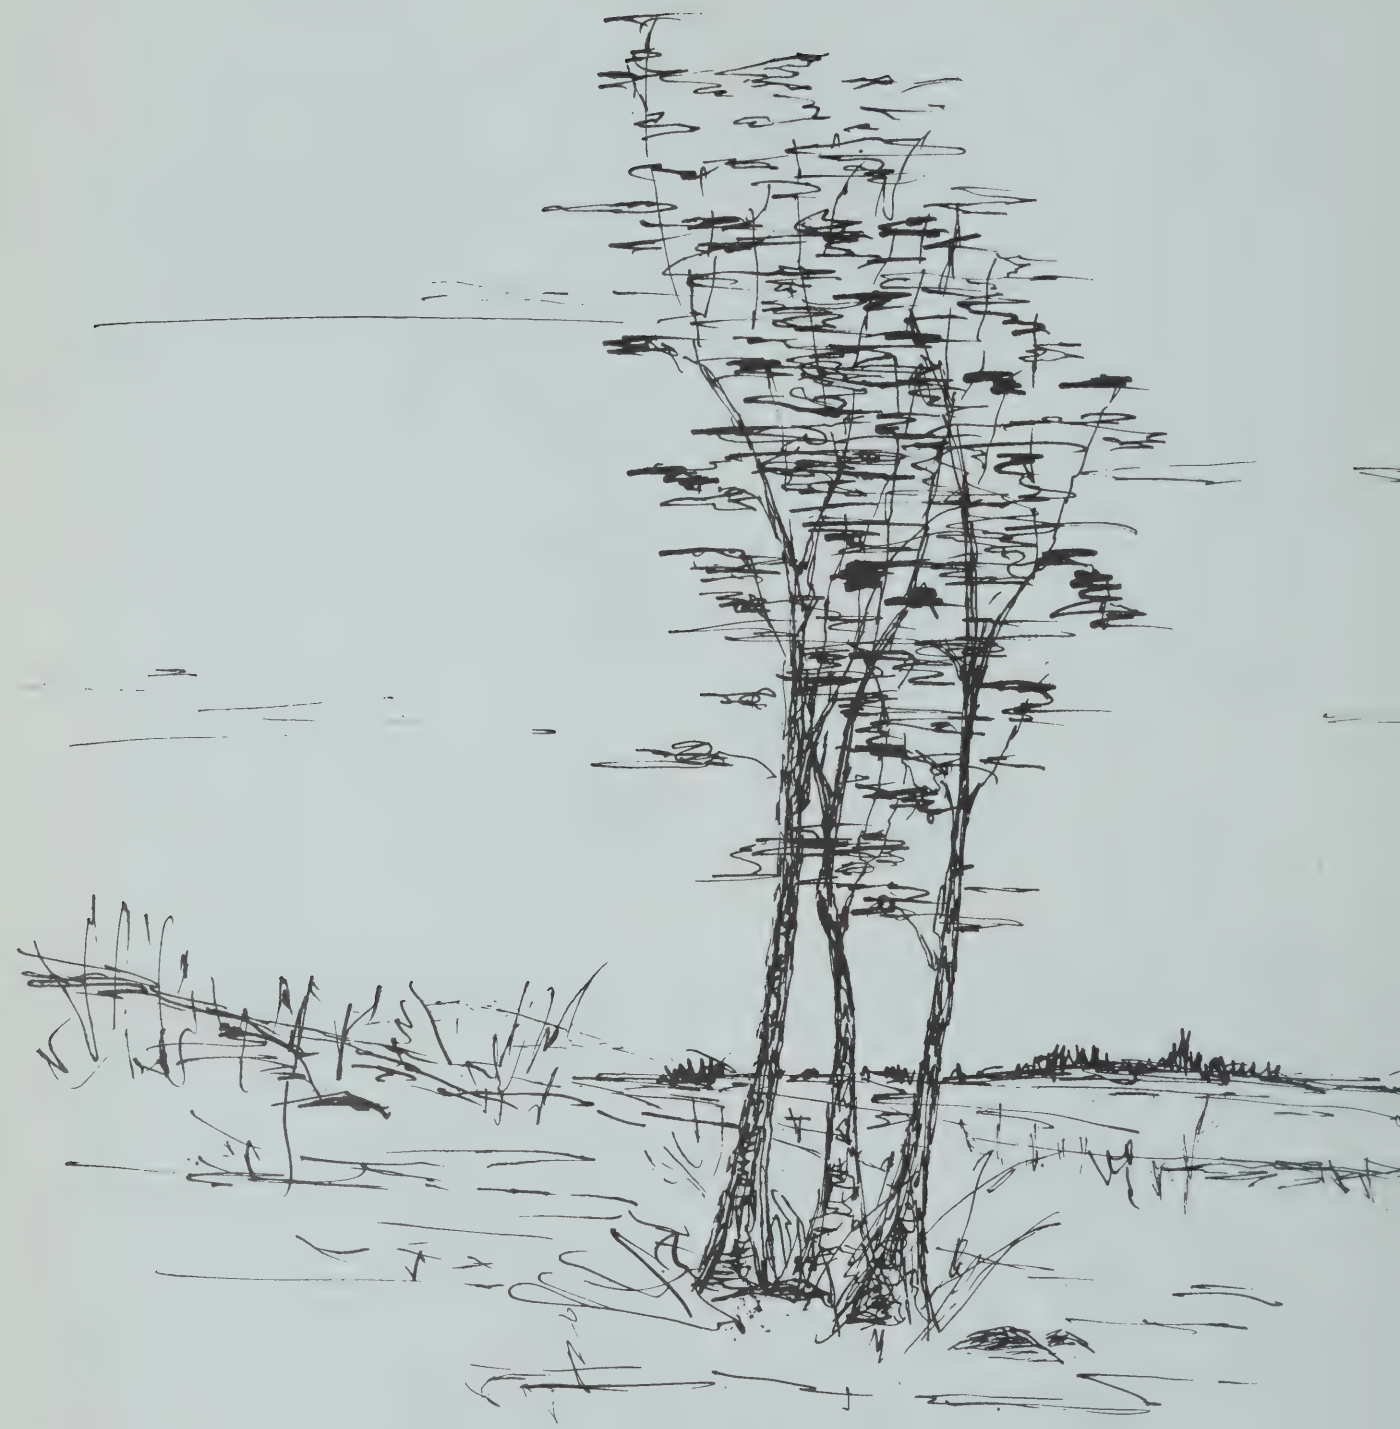
as individuals



Our years at Mansfield High have provided us with memories... memories of joy and happiness... memories of disappointment and sadness... also, left with us are the memories of three classmates — three friends.

The Class of 1971 therefore dedicates this yearbook in remembrance of Kathleen Eckert, Steven Brown, and Stephen Ineilo.

We will never forget them.

in the still of life
i pause
watch old faces rush by, and pick up new — in the ebb tide, i lull, let my mind wander, then jolt my brain back to reality —
in the interim i rest, dream, and sleep deeply... ...

To Miss Theresa Lajeunesse, who accepted the position of class advisor in our sophomore year, and gave her every effort and then some, the Class of 1971 extends a very grateful thanks, and best wishes for the future.

The 1971 Hornet staff wishes to express the highest gratitude to our Advisor, Mr. Michael Brandenburg, who spent many long and arduous hours with us striving to achieve excellence.

STEFAN THEODORE

LYMAN C. AVERY

Mr. Avery is always lending his support and giving our school a sense of unity. We greatly appreciate his understanding and his hard work to improve the Mansfield Schools.

We are the last class to remember Mr. Qualters as principal. We thank him for that memory and for his work during the last four years as the Assistant Superintendent of Schools.

Special Education

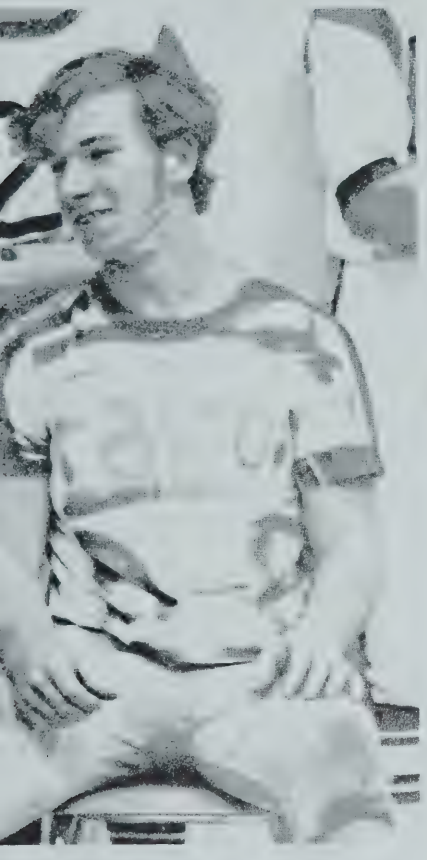
. . . Fall and Winter . . .



In the fall, life at Mansfield High School was centered around football. Along with the athletes, others also strove for perfection, to make Saturdays "Big" days in Mansfield. The Hornets played Dighton-Rehoboth in the Homecoming game, and senior Anna Colella was chosen "Homecoming Queen." Hopes were high for making the Homecoming an annual tradition.

Mansfield High this year had a minority of devoted individuals, but a spirited majority was lacking.

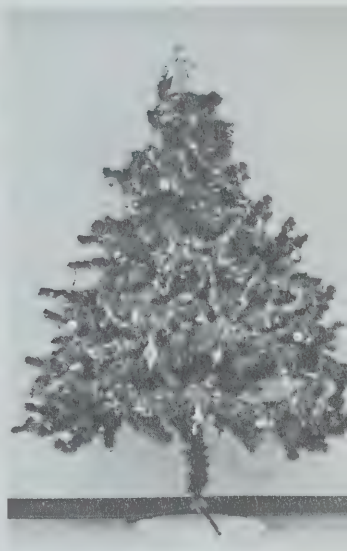
Many attempted to pass on their enthusiasm to others

. . . but the taste of winning was a thing of the past, and so was the spirit of the fans. Many students had merely given up without a fight.

During the fall months the freshmen performed a stage play version of Charlie Brown.

Then fall came to a close . . .

. . . Christmas and vacation were in sight. Those individuals who had devoted their energies during football season now had turned their time elsewhere. Noel, the Christmas Assembly was presented by the Student Council, Class Officers, Band, and the Concert Choir.



Highlighting the Christmas season was the Christmas Ball. Gary Eagan and Jane Wheeler acted as Mr. and Mrs. Claus and crowned Jim Hawes and Sue Regula as snow King and Queen.

The winter months graced us with the pleasure of indoor sports, the tension of mid-year exams, and the relief which came when they were finished. The weather was a friend that adorned our halls with water buckets and gave us unexpected vacations.

The winter days always seemed the longest, but . . .

. . . 1970 had passed . . .

and 1971 our year had finally come . . .

SPORTS

This is how it was . . .

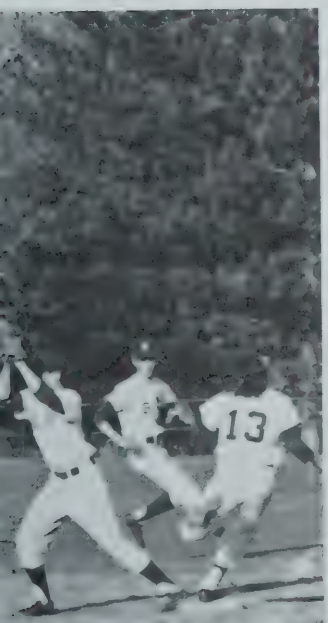
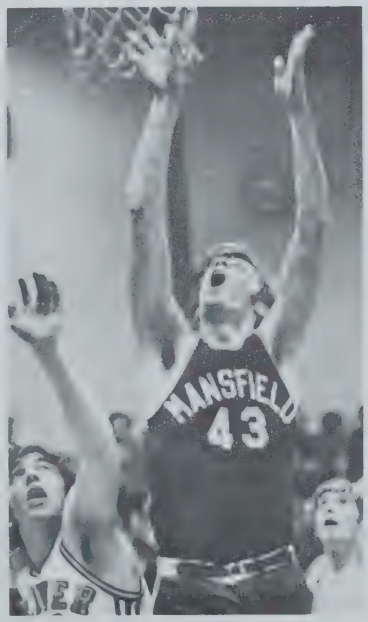
DEFEAT . . . the trend in 1970-71 Mansfield High sports. It was a year of setbacks . . . frustration . . . agony . . . heartbreak.

Yet to call the Hornets "losers" without recognizing the spirit and determination of all involved is to misunderstand the entire purpose and result of a year's labors.

In every sport, no matter how strong the opponent was, the Hornets always possessed a burning desire to win . . . a desire that was rarely fulfilled.





Yes, the Hornets were "losers" . . . but they had the pride of winners. Share with us a short look into the hearts and souls of those who wore the Green and White on the fields of honor . . .

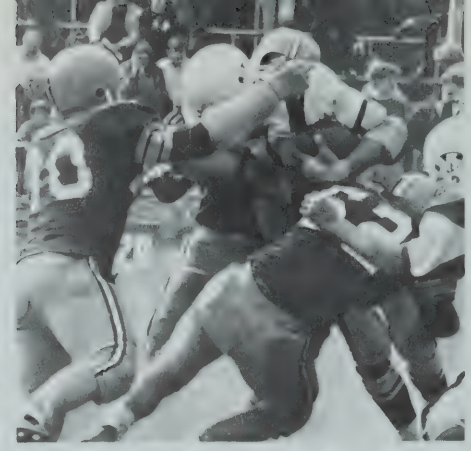
End

To these seniors the team bids a fond farewell.



It was a story of season-long frustration for the football Green Hornets, who finished with an 0-9-0 season's record. The opening game acted as a crystal ball for the season, as the largest school in the Hockomock League, Stoughton, ran roughshod over the Hornets, 48-0. Tackle Larry Shepard was sidelined for most of the season. Then, the Hornets threatened but King Philip prevailed, 8-6.

Undaunted by the two heartbreaking losses, the team played its strongest game against eventual league champion Franklin, only to fall to the Panthers, 12-6. The Hornets clearly outplayed the champs, and almost had them on defeat's door in the fourth quarter when a Tom Souza punt landed on the Franklin one-half yard line. Able to platoon at will, the burly invaders embarked on a 99-yard drive to score . . . and win.

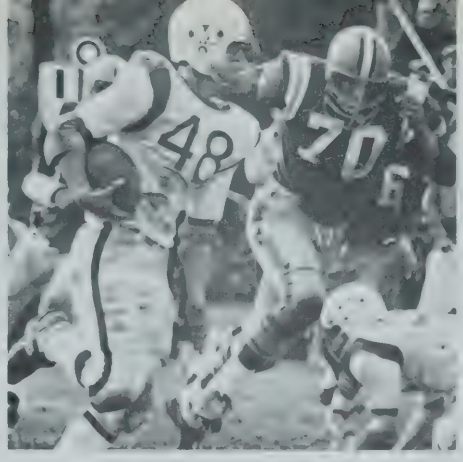
An October snow squall, one of the wonders of New England weather, cooled off the Hornets in a 30-8 loss at Canton. Three Mansfield drives were halted within the Canton 15-yard line. Halfback Andy Metters was sidelined for the year, and both Souza and Joe Courtemanche were hurt.



At mid-season, the Hornets hosted non-league foe Dighton-Rehoboth in the first annual Homecoming Game and fell behind 32-0 at the half. Souza, injured or not, returned to quarterback and fired two quick touchdown passes to Larry McAulay and Jack Auld. However, D-R's first-string defense held, and the Hornets lost, 34-12.

The slow improvement continued as the Hornets returned to Hockomock competition with Souza and Rollie Clement scoring in Oliver Ames' 35-12 victory on Halloween. The next week, the Hornets journeyed to North Attleboro with victory in their eyes, but left crushed by a heartbreaking 7-0 defeat. Scoreless for all but one minute of the game, a last-second interception and 30-yard runback gave North the only score of the day. It all but erased an immense defensive effort by the Green and White.

First-year Sharon, a new entry in the league, dumped Mansfield 13-0, and the Hornets would not be able to score in their last game. In one of the oldest schoolboy rivalries in Massachusetts, Foxboro mauled the Hornets 33-0 on Thanksgiving morning. The long season was finally over.

Despite the winless season, the Hornets proved that life can't be all THAT bad . . .

The 1970-71 Hornet basketball opened with an ulcer . . . that is, Coach John Dunn was hospitalized for an ulcer before the first week of practice. His recovery was swift, and he and his team plunged ahead into the season with determination . . . and many quarts of apricot nectar!

Hopes were high for the Hornets as they opened the season in the Hockomock Basketball Jamboree with a 19-12 win over North Attleboro and a 17-12 loss to King Philip.

Alex Salachi scored a record 45 points as the Hornets defeated non-league Westport, 87-64. The win broke a string of 17 consecutive losses, but another streak was yet unbroken.

Mansfield was leading Oliver Ames 42-28 after the third quarter in the first league game, and seemed assured of victory. But, OA charged back and won, 54-51. Another heartbreaking loss came at Foxboro, where the Hornets "couldn't buy a bucket" and lost, 46-45.

Despite a strong effort, the Hornets fell prey to eventual champion Sharon's strength, 80-69. Salachi scored 32, Jack Auld 14, and Tom Souza 10.

The supreme insult was registered when North Attleboro's Red Rocketeers humiliated the Hornets, 102-59, in fron of a delighted North crowd. Too many fouls nullified Salachi's 30-point spree in a 79-63 loss at Canton . . . and perhaps the most crushing blow of the entire season came next.

In the Middle School's Don Currivan Memorial Gymnasium, Salachi was suddenly rendered useless due to a sprained left ankle while playing Stoughton. Al was sidelined for four games, and any chance of his repeating his sensational junior year pace was gone. The Hornets lost, 74-45.

Salachi's injury came just before the two games the Hornets had the most chance of winning. Bob Vernon scored 22 points against King Philip, but the Warriors won 53-48. Four Hornets (Gary Sullivan 15, Vernon 14, Sel Stearns 12, Tom Souza 10) hit double figures but Franklin won, 65-58. At mid-season, the Hornets had lost four games by seven points or less.

The second time around, OA romped 81-46, Foxboro coasted, 44-34, and Sharon Had little trouble despite Salachi's 17-point return, 86-45.

North Attleboro was due, and the Hornets were ready. A "stall-ball" offense frustrated the North crowd, resulting in loud booing and occasional fighting. Still, the Hornet tactics brought about a moral victory, keeping North under 50 points, 48-36.

A gradual, determined improvement trend took hold, and although the Hornets lost the next two games, to Canton, 68-51, and Stoughton, 78-62, everyone knew something would have to give soon.

It did against King Philip, when the Hornets, paced by Salachi's 32 points and Stearns' rebounding, broke a string of 31 straight Hockomock League losses, 71-67, and a 67-62 win over Franklin in the James Albertini Gym closed the season on a happy note. As the scoreboard showed, the Hornets were winning again.

Many times during the basketball season, it was conclusively proven that Mansfield always had players on the court with plenty of fight in 'em . . .

The two basketball victories were prophetic of things to come. Although a prized Hockomock League championship would still be out of reach, one Mansfield sporting team would accomplish what others had tried and failed to do . . . knock three Hockomock League teams out of contention for state tournament berths. This is the story of that team.

The Hornet baseball team opened its schedule with an announcement that coach John Dunn would be retiring at the end of the season. In exhibition, the Green tipped Millis 8-1, and lost a pair of scrimmages to Holbrook, 7-1 and 4-3. However, pre-season estimations tagged this Hornet club with the ability to surprise . . . something that would later ring true.

Jack Auld pitched the opener at Foxboro, and watched the Hornets score four runs in the seventh to send the game into extra-innings. Jon Johnson's 340-foot homer in the eighth won it for Foxboro, 5-4. The Hornets evened their record with a 6-2 win over Oliver Ames, Joe Brown getting the win. Stepping out of the league, Auld's hurling and Charlie Zaffini's 2-for-3 led the Hornets over Norton, 10-1, but the luck soon changed.

Brown and Auld combined to no-hit Sharon, but three walks and three wild pitches gave the Eagles a 3-2 win. The Hornets blew a three-run lead and lost to North Attleboro, 7-3, also losing catcher Ben Haskell with a broken wrist. Canton (15-2), and Stoughton (10-4), mauled the Hornets.

Brown bounced back and struck out 12 in thumping King Philip, 7-4, but Franklin's Fred Baglioni stopped the Green cold, 9-1.

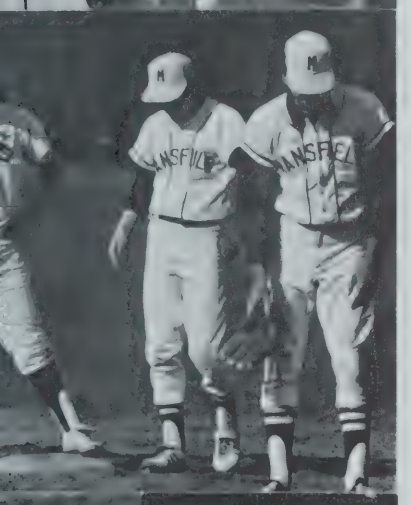
With a 2-6 league record at mid-season, it looked as if another dismal season was in the works. It looked even worse when Oliver Ames gained revenge, 9-1, and Foxboro clawed out a 10-6 triumph. Even lowly Norton scared the Hornets but lost, 1-0.

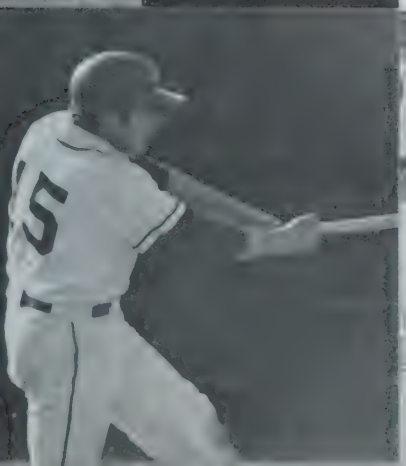
A death knell rang out when the Hornets committed ten errors and handed Sharon a 14-7 decision. The next day's rain was life-saving to the players.

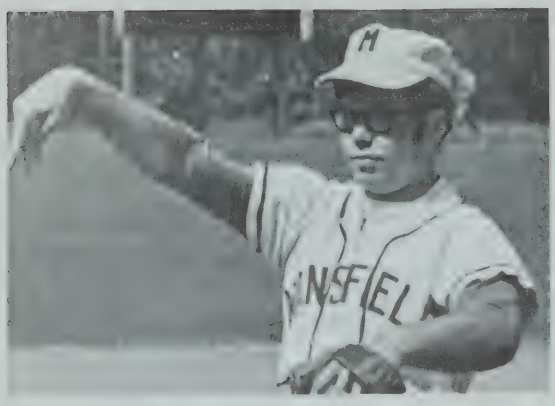
Again the luck changed. Hated North Attleboro, unbeatable by Mansfield since football of 1968, lost to the Hornets 5-2, eliminating the Redmen from contention for a berth in the EMass baseball tourney. Auld took the win, and the celebration was unlike anything seen in Mansfield in years.

Brown was masterful and the Hornet defense chipped in four double plays to stop Canton's bid for the tourney, 1-0. Then, Stoughton's chances for post-season play were erased as Auld threw a 5-1 win. Three contending teams had been dropped from contention thanks to the upstart Hornets.

Everybody hit as Brown picked up win number four, beating King Philip 8-1, but hopes for a .500 season were dashed when Franklin, the league champion, won, 6-3. The season, 8-10 for the Hornets, was over . . . but no longer would Mansfield be regarded as the weakling of the Hockomock League.







"You don't thay, Bruce!"

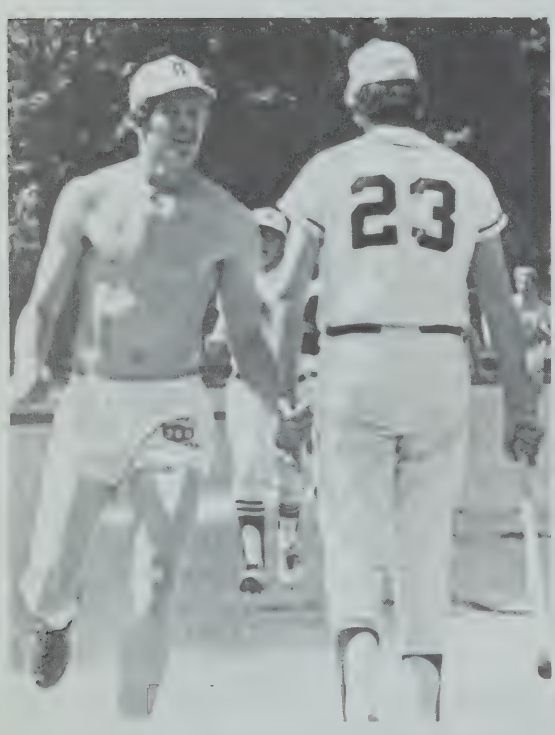
"I can't see!"



"You didn't think I was gonna let Hawk BEAT me, did you Coach?"

Mansfield High's 1971 track team won two meets in non-league competition, downing Southeastern Regional 70-52 and tripping Norton 67-55, but the Hornet cindermen still couldn't find the strength to win a dual meet in the Hockomock League. Closest to victory came when a dropped baton in relay cost the Hornets a two-point loss to Sharon. The season's record was 2 wins and 9 losses.

Mansfield's strength was not in dual meet competition but instead in individual effort. Larry McAulay, Randy Tatum, Tom Souza, Fred Sarro, and Bob Vernon were consistent scorers. McAulay, Souza, and Tatum qualified for the state class meets, and in the all-class meet, McAulay threw his javelin 184 feet to smash the former Class E record by more than ten feet.

Things will be looking up for the Hornet trackmen in years to come. They possess the finest track in the league, the year-old James J. Kelly track. Underclassmen stocked the team this year. And, as Coach Farinella puts it, "individual effort means team victory" . . . a proposition few Mansfield athletes can resist.

The team loses only one senior, four-year letterman and captain Gary Gegenheimer, leaving outstanding singles player Joe Cutillo and the rest to replace him.

Golf

This year, Mansfield High was forced to withdraw from Hockomock League competition in golf due to a disappointingly pronounced lack of interest in the sport. However, Coach John Farmer started an instructional program in the Middle School, and it won't be long before Mansfield is again represented on the fairways.

Tennis

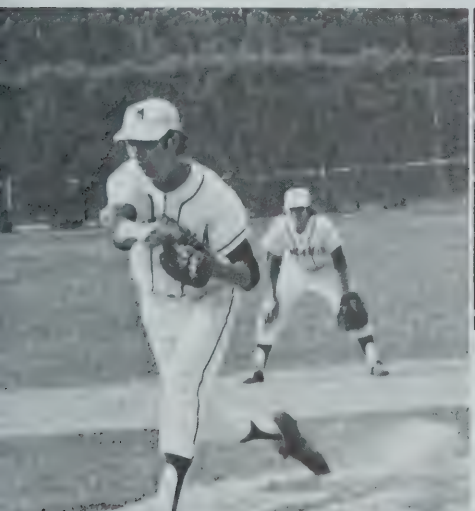
Mansfield High's girls' tennis team created a sort of dynasty this year with its third consecutive Hockomock League Championship, thus becoming the winningest sporting team in MHS in recent history.

Unfortunately, the photographers under contract for the 1971 HORNET failed to take a picture of the team. Members of the squad were: Capt. Cathy Annese, P. Corey, R. MacPhee, D. Marvelle, E. Goddard, D. Chambers, L. Gonsalves, S. Garland, K. Chambers, N. Corey.

. . . Congratulations to the team . . .

The end of the school year also marked the end of another season of athletics. In the won-lost column, the year was not successful for the second year in a row. For that reason, the entire attitude of those who participate in sports and those who are merely spectators has changed in just two short years . . . made necessary by a sudden switch from winning to losing.

Many have soured on sports altogether. Others just sit around waiting for assurance of victory before participating either physically or vocally. Still others take the field interested in only the personal glory rather than that of the team or school. One thing is certain . . . a "new breed" of athlete has arrived at MHS.



Graduation in 1971 marked the departure of "the winners" . . . the few seniors who participated in the 1968 football championship. Since then, all who have joined in the athletic program have seen nothing but defeat.

Here, Mansfield High has been provided with another kind of athlete . . . one who is sick of losing. It is his determination and constant effort that will eventually stem the overwhelming tide of defeat.

By tradition, Mansfield High is a winning school. Pride and determination will make the "new breed" winners also.

Now, only empty locker rooms, deserted playing fields, and a vacant gymnasium remain . . . until a new season begins. Let us hope new seasons always continue to come, making available to future youth of Mansfield one of the best character builders there is, and a reasonable outlet for the human urge to best one's fellowman . . . athletic competition.

The editors of the 1971 HORNET wish to express the deepest gratitude whose expert skills in photography made possible many of the pictures used in this yearbook. Don's eagerness to sacrifice his time and effort earned him the highest admiration from the entire HORNET staff.

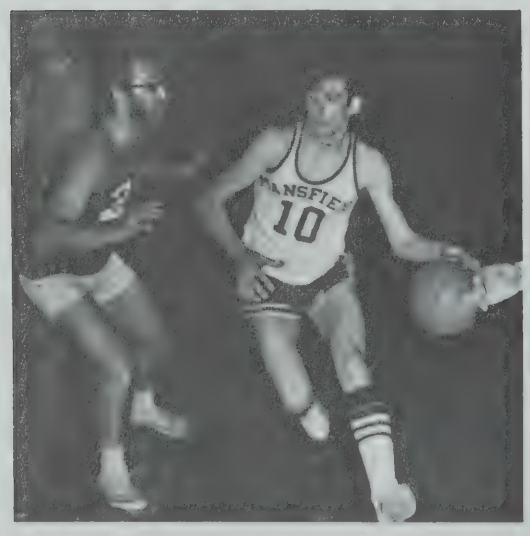
The 1971 HORNET also thanks the publishers of The Mansfield NEWS and Mark Farinella for some of the photographs used in this sports section.

WINTER AND SPRING



Winter was for Basketball! In fact, everyone at MHS was so basketball happy, both the boys' and girls' varsity teams agreed to take on the faculty.

The "old men" gave a good account of themselves, but lost to the youthful Hornets, 64-49, in a game played as seriously as one in the regular season. The MHS girls dumped the women's faculty, 30-16 despite the efforts of the one and only Gertrude Cousy . . . or was it Sel Stearns??

Annual Spring Concert

The Hornet Band honored its most talented and faithful at the annual concert held on May 21. For many, the concert marked the end of as much as eight years' service to the organization.

Club '71

Club 71 revived an old MHS tradition, as the best talent in the school was showcased for an evening. Mark Farinella emceed the night's festivities, and Jackie Cross and Gary Eagan headed a long list of Student Council members who contributed their best efforts for Club 71's success.

. . . However, some said jokingly that neither the pizza nor the entertainment were easy to stomach.

One thing's certain . . . Snyder, New York's Amherst High School Band brought "new faces" to Mansfield High during exchange week. Not your average "band Brownies," Snyder's 86-member band decidedly livened proceedings for a week.

A most enjoyable performance was staged by the Amherst "dixieland band," which received a loud ovation from the students in assembly.

The Junior Prom

Millis' Glen Ellen Country Club once again hosted the Junior Prom and Senior Reception, held on May 28th.

Seniors Rick Roullard and Linda Hardy were chosen king and queen of the prom . . .

. . . and were escorted to their thrones by the queen's court: Sharon Garland, Elizabeth Savini, Paulette Bedard, Alison Holm, Maureen Piccolomini, Joan Letteney, Marcia Vickery, and Sharon Corley.

Festivities were highlighted by a grand march (in which almost everyone participated) and "the Harvey Blanks Groove" . . . which provided more spontaneous fun than past proms had ever seen.

A good night all around.

"I don't know why you bought contacts in the first place 'T'."

"My girdle is killing me."

"Hands Off!!!"

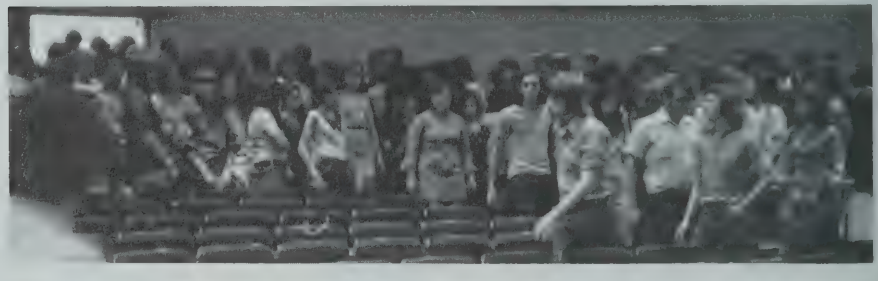
"Would you care to dance??"

"Ricky's KING???"

The Fabulous Magicians provided a night of laughter and fun at MHS . . .

. . . and on a more solemn note, three seniors were chosen to participate in our government. Paula Lodico attended the Presidential Classroom held in Washington D. C., Bob Vernon was our Student Government Day representative, and Laura Alperin recieved the D.A.R. good citizen award.

. . . Seniors Bid A Fond Farewell . . .



The last few weeks for the seniors had finally arrived. The normal rat race of the past four years wound down to a slow crawl, and friends reached out together to capture memories. The Class of 1971 was about to vacate the "hallowed" halls and become graduates.

One thing have I asked of the LORD, that I may dwell in the house of the

to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to inquire in his temple.

For He will hide me in His shelter

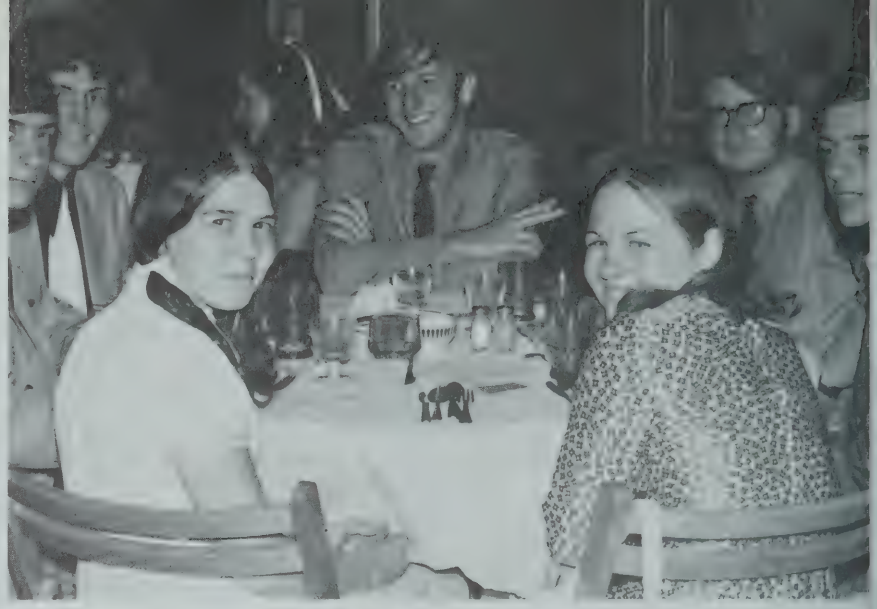
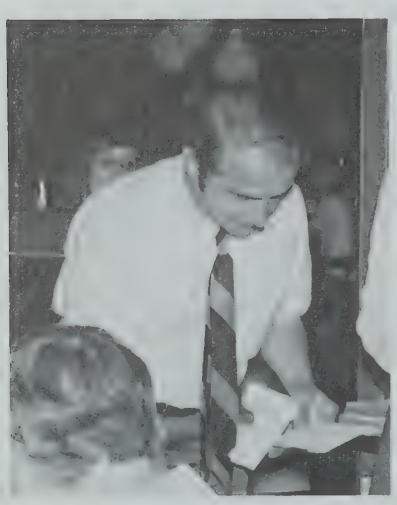
Our Class Banquet

The class banquet, held at the New Plainsman Restaurant in North Attleboro on July 7, provided a free feed and much spirited enjoyment for everyone.

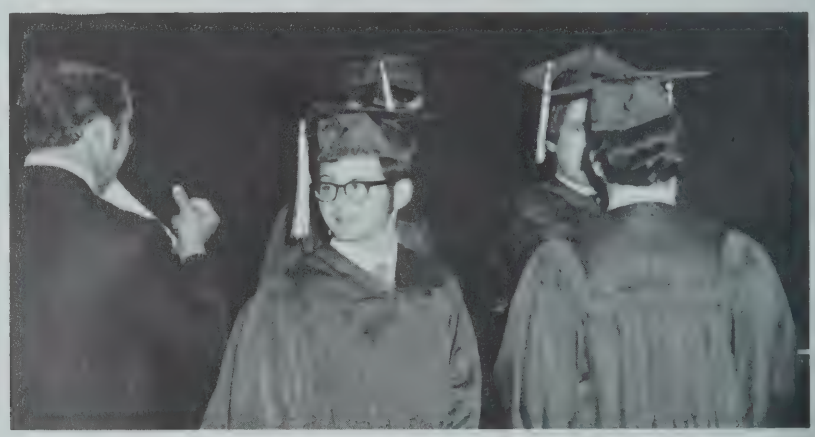




The class officers presented gifts to class advisors Francese Pearce and Edward Albertini.

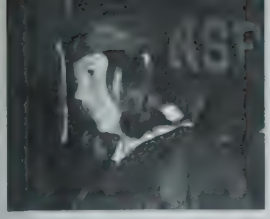
Graduation

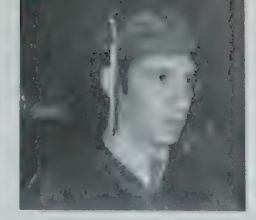
"Now is the time . . ." echoed the entire school's sentiments as it was again time to bid farewell to another class of seniors . . .
. . . this time, the Class of 1971.

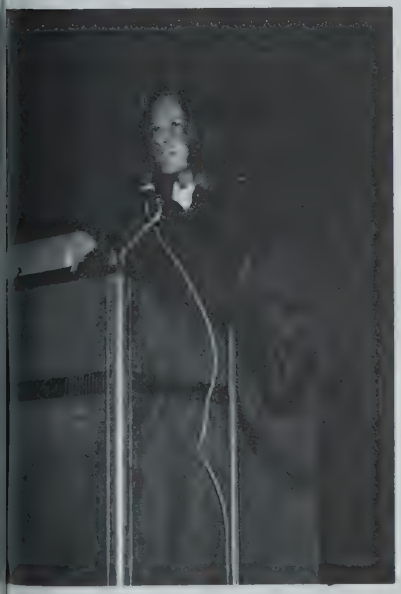


The class was subjected to a series of rehearsals, drills, and practices, almost as if to awake the students from a dream, and snap them into the reality that this was the real thing, they were graduating, and their years as high school students were rapidly coming to a close.

Finally, the climax of four years' hard labor was on hand. Graduation . . . the event anticipated by so many for so long was suddenly here, leaving the majority of the Class of 1971 stunned and wondering "where the time had gone." One-hundred eleven diplomas transformed one-hundred eleven human beings . . . all different, yet strangely united . . . into graduates of MHS.

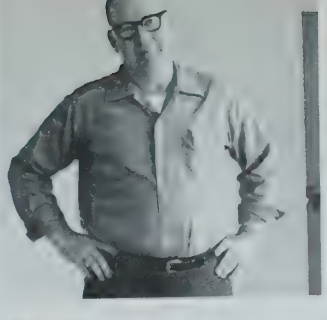


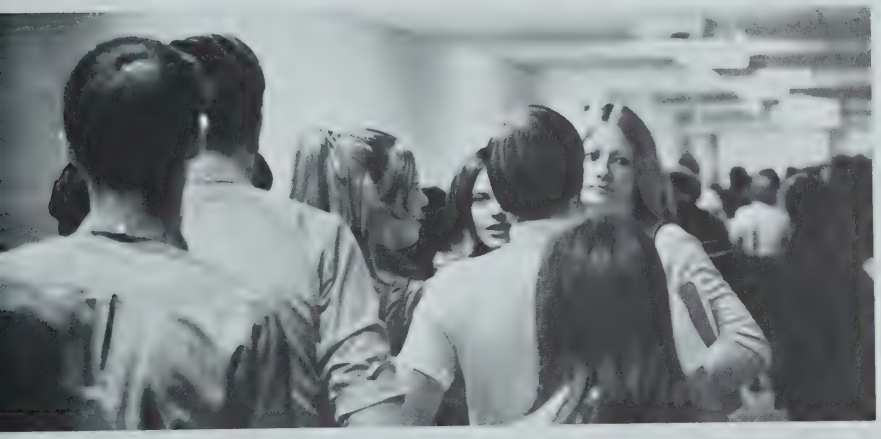


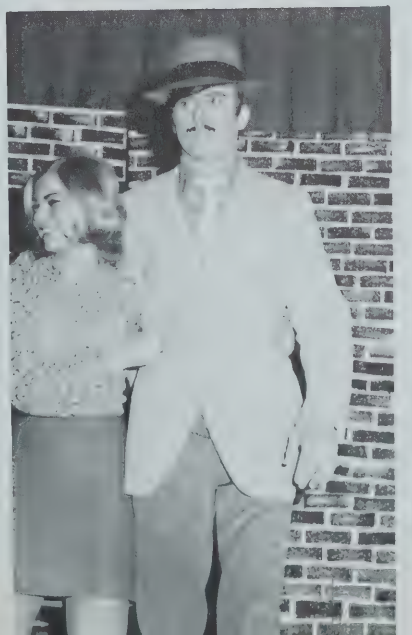


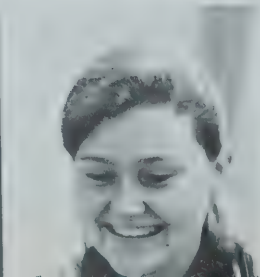
Graduation . . . a fitting climax . . . but not a conclusion . . . to the story of the Class of 1971.

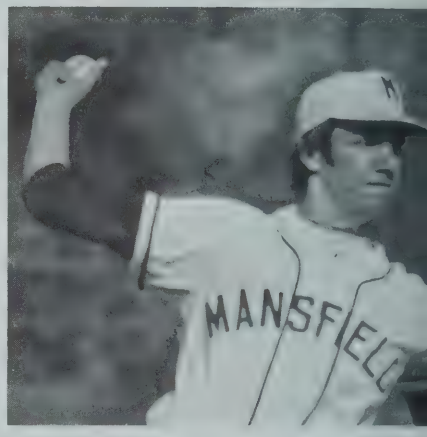
. . . Now . . .
. . . only memories remain . . .



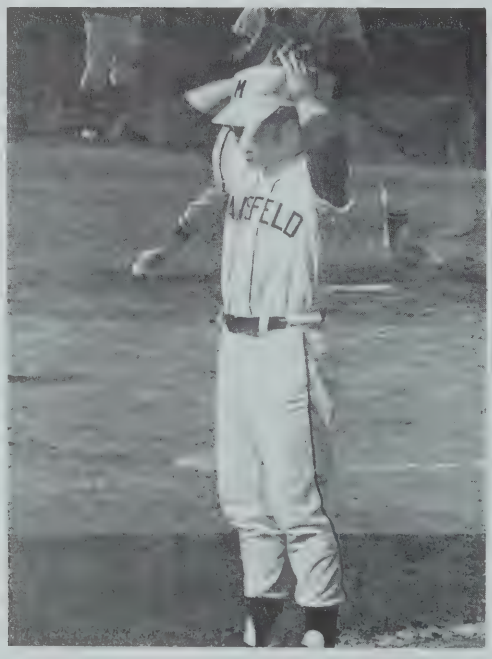








MANSFIELD



some vivid . . . others dim . . .
to be remembered and cherished forever . . .
